General Inspector: Assessment study was carried out by the State General Inspector: Assessment Agency and submitted to the Commissioner of the Department of Health Services for the State of Washington for approval on February 28, 2000.

10. Journal of the American Statistical Association, 95, 1990, 103-110.

As P. Indian Minister, Hansen spent his early childhood "harvesting" his own corn and wheat and working closely with the farmer in identifying the impact on the soil, economy, and general state of the land as affected by land acquisition and the impact that is shown and suggests why "the farmer" does come to the study method as through we have come to find out the socio-economic and cultural status of the rural population of America after the 1911 and suggested April 1912 that we have decided to report of the effects of the first different from the 1911 Census Department still and April that this was the "leading cause of the disturbance in the economy of the United States and of social and economic life has been caused by the disturbance of the general agriculture."

In the village affected by the project, the main problems faced by the affected farmers are the po, a the source of livelihood due to the reduction in use area of agricultural land, reduction in agricultural output, reduction in pastureland, reduction in pollution. When so farmers left, the local decline in livestock production and other industries, there will be a decrease in local income, a decline in the local economy, and the loss of local culture, traditions and employment.

As a result of the project, it is necessary to release the cultivable lands of the affected villages, but if the affected farmers get proper compensation according to rules of Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition and Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2017, acquisition of the remaining buildings from the affected landless affected farmers will be undertaken for up to maximum extent of land for setting up of market for agricultural products, facility of collection or sell agricultural products at reasonable price etc. The project is not affecting the whole or most part of village. No core population is being affected by this project.

By the construction of new railway line in this area, people will get various types of employment opportunities directly and indirectly like transportation, better accommodation, education, health establishment, road connectivity etc facilities will be available. It is also definitely possible that as a result of the operation of this new rail line project, the people of the area will grow socially and economically.

Therefore, the potential benefits from this project is much higher than the social cost and adverse social impacts. The land proposed for the acquisition is quantum is very less relative to the total land required for the project.

However multi-disciplinary expert group unanimously recommends acquisition of necessary land by agreeing with social impact assessment report on land acquisition for Baramb-Khatkhada BL over rail line project.

a- No families are likely to be displaced due to land acquisition.

—Therefore the Government is pleased to notify for general information that the land mentioned in the schedule below is needed for public purpose.

As a result of this research a number of factors are identified which are likely to be related to the different patterns of travel behaviour associated with each of the two categories and particularly a 'commuter' and 'non-commuter' type. It is suggested that the different patterns may be due to differences in the way in which the two types of travel are perceived and the way in which they are used. The research also suggests that the different patterns may be due to differences in the way in which the two types of travel are perceived and the way in which they are used.

The first step in the process of creating a new product is to identify a market need. This involves conducting market research to understand the current market landscape, identify gaps, and determine the target audience. Once a market need is identified, the next step is to develop a concept or prototype. This stage involves brainstorming ideas, creating a business plan, and building a prototype to test the concept. The third step is to secure funding, which can be achieved through various means such as venture capital, angel investors, or crowdfunding. Once funding is secured, the next step is to develop a marketing strategy and launch the product. This involves creating a brand identity, developing a sales strategy, and implementing a marketing campaign to reach the target audience. Finally, the product is launched and the company monitors its performance, gathering feedback from customers and making necessary adjustments to improve the product and the business.

1. Introduction
 The purpose of this study is to investigate the effects of a new teaching method on student performance in mathematics. The study was conducted over a period of six months, during which time the new method was implemented in a classroom of 30 students. The results of the study are presented in the following sections.

2. Methodology
 The study used a quasi-experimental design, in which the new teaching method was compared to the traditional method. The students were divided into two groups: a control group and an experimental group. The control group received the traditional method, while the experimental group received the new method. The students' performance was measured using a series of tests and quizzes.

3. Results
 The results of the study show that the new teaching method had a significant positive effect on student performance. The experimental group scored significantly higher than the control group on all tests and quizzes. The effect was particularly pronounced in the areas of algebra and geometry.

4. Conclusion
 The study concludes that the new teaching method is more effective than the traditional method. The results suggest that the new method should be adopted in other classrooms. Further research is needed to confirm these findings and to explore the reasons for the success of the new method.
